Miller maps division of $65,000 collected

by Marsha Hausser

Of the approximately $65,000 collected in auxiliary enterprise fees from Eastern students this semester, $30,000 has not been spent and another $30,000 has paid utility bills for some campus buildings, George Miller, vice president for administration and finance, said.

Approximately $5,000 was used to fund the TV-radio study committee, which hired consultants to study locations for a TV studio and the possibility of adding an FM campus radio station, Miller said.

The auxiliary enterprise fee, which was instituted in the fall of 1979, came after the Illinois Board of Higher Education directed all state universities to pass to the students by 1985 operating costs for all buildings and activities which primarily students use.

Auxiliary enterprises at Eastern are the residence halls, food services, University Union, married student housing and the Textbook Library.

Even though students do not have to assume the operating costs until 1985, Eastern and other state universities began phasing in the auxiliary enterprise plan this year rather than waiting until 1985 and transferring the total cost at once.

This semester, as in last, approximately $65,000 was collected from students out of the $712,800 which was originally estimated for the operating costs in student-used auxiliary enterprises.

That figure has recently been reduced to approximately $487,000, after the initial auxiliary enterprise payments by students and a reassessment of the total amount of space at Eastern which students primarily use.

The reassessment resulted in a reduction of the total amount of auxiliary enterprise activities by $272,000, Miller said.

While the money collected this year has reduced the total amount of the subsidy, it is not going entirely to pay for the operating costs of the auxiliary enterprises, Miller said.

The approximately $30,000 which was used to pay for some utility costs in the various auxiliary enterprises was divided among the enterprises to reduce the amount the university had to pay in utility costs for each of the enterprises.

The remaining $30,000, which was "freed up" in other areas of the budget after the fees were collected, is in separate accounts which the university may decide to spend or save, depending on how the money can better be used, Miller said.

The money is divided up into equipment—$15,000, commodities—$10,000, travel—$5,000 and contractual services—$5,170.

Included in the contractual services area are the costs for utilities, machine repair and rental. Commodities include any type of consummable goods used by the university such as chalk or paper.

Miller said the amount of funds in those accounts is not absolute—funds can be traded if more are needed in a certain area.

He said the money in the accounts may be used for "high priority academic needs" such as the TV-radio study or hiring a new teacher.

"If money isn't tied down from year to year, we can use it in other areas," Miller said.

However, he said committing a certain amount of funds every year, by hiring a teacher for example, would limit and reduce the various areas in which the money could be spent.

He said in about a week he, the other vice presidents and Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin will meet to decide which of the areas need money and "trade off" funds to support those areas.

Kennedy's nephew to campaign

Chris Kennedy-Lawford, nephew of presidential candidate Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass, will make two campaign appearances in Charleston Wednesday to help his uncle's bid in the Illinois democratic primary.

Lawford, 24, will speak at 3:30 p.m. in the Panther Lair of the University Union and again at 8 p.m. at Kennedy's Charleston Headquarters, 9th St. and Linclon Ave (formerly the Record Cellar).

Fred MacLaren, chairman of the Kennedy for President campaign in Charleston, said the younger Kennedy's appearance will be part of the Kennedy headquarters. The occasion will mark the formal opening of the local Kennedy campaign, MacLaren said.

The public is invited to meet the Kennedy slate for delegates at the Democratic National Nominating Convention to be held in New York City in August, MacLaren said.

Coles County candidates, in addition to MacLaren, are Becky Summary, Charleston and Carol Specht, Mattoon, who is an alternate delegate.

Other candidates on the Kennedy ticket are Darrell Farris, Tuscola; Robert Payne, Georgetown; Sharon Cunningham, Danville; R.L. Kelley, Danville and Leslie Newton-Niccum, Effingham.

Blood drive adds 438 pints, two-day total rises to 1,036

by David White

The second day of Eastern's Red Cross Blood Drive brought in 438 pints, raising the total to 1,036 pints collected for two days.

With two days still remaining in the drive, the Red Cross is just 436 pints short of its goal of 1,500.

Nurse Ida Mae Feste, mobile unit supervisor for the drive, has been working on blood drives for 15 years and has been working at the Eastern drive for the last 3 semesters.

Feste gives credit for the success of the drive to the students and to the sponsors.

"Every time we come back students make the drive better. They seem to be more aware of the need and use for their blood," Feste said.

She added, "The Eastern drive has an advantage because of the sponsors Walter and Margaret Lowell. They just hold this whole thing together," she said.

Walter Lowell, dean of the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, has been faculty adviser of the drive for eight years. His wife Margaret has been working with the Red Cross for 19 years.

When asked about the drive, Lowell pointed to the student volunteers and said, "it's the spark of youth that makes this thing work."

Carter, Reagan run away with three Southern primaries

by The Associated Press

President Carter and Republican Ronald Reagan marched through Georgia, Florida and Alabama Tuesday night, burying their White House rivals in a three-state set of Southern presidential primary elections.

Carter won his home Georgia Democratic primary by a towering margin, polling a dozen votes and more for every ballot cast for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

His Alabama margin was almost as lopsided, and in Florida he was reaping two-thirds of the vote while Kennedy captured only 16 percent.

Conservative Reagan was the runaway victor over former United Nations Ambassador George Bush in all three states. Florida was the closest thing to a contest; there it was Reagan 56 percent, Bush 31.

Kennedy didn't even campaign and the outcomes were no surprise. But the margins were. Carter's Georgia victory eclipsed Kennedy's home-state triumph in Massachusetts one week ago. The Democratic challenger gained 65 percent of the vote there.

The Southern victories put Carter back in command in the race for Democratic nominating delegates. He was gaining 184, to run his national total to 271. Kennedy led for 22 in the Tuesday primaries, which would put his overall delegate strength at 137.

It will take 1,666 to select a Democratic presidential nominee.

Gacy called 'worst'

A young prosecutor gave an impassioned four-hour closing summary Tuesday in the mass murder trial of John W. Gacy Jr., calling Gacy the "worst of all murderers" and his insanity defense "a fraud."

Carter 'casts about' for strategy

The Carter administration clung Tuesday to a United Nations commission as the best avenue for trying to gain the release of an estimated 50 American hostages in Iran.

But with the U.N. panel's mission in Tehran aborted, President Carter and his principal policy-makers were casting about for a new strategy that could lead to freedom for the Americans held hostage for more than four months.

Deans, chairmen discuss CUPB budget plan

by Melinda DeVries

The major concerns of deans and department chairmen about Eastern's new budget process developed by the Council on University Planning and Budgeting are in the time involved in preparing the budget plan materials and the plan's effectiveness in the long run.

Vaughn Jaenike, dean of the School of Fine Arts, said the new plan will definitely take more time and said he hopes it will pay off.

"The end result of adequate funding will tell us if the time was worth it," Jaenike said.

Arthur Hoffman, accountancy and finance department chairman, said the main question he had was whether all the additional work will pay off.

"I'm not too sure how effective it will be in the allocation of resources. I guess only time will tell," Hoffman said.

Hoffman said the plan will be effective only if those who make the final budget request consider the departments' requests seriously.

"Before, when the departments would submit requests, the top budget people would just ignore them," he said.

Hoffman said the time element is another area he is concerned with.

"The time element bothers me the most. Most deans will have enough time to review the departments' requests, but when it gets to the vice presidents, they will not be able to do an adequate job because of the lack of time," he said.

The new long-range budget plan was developed by the CUPB in an effort to involve the academic departments in the planning of Eastern's yearly budget.

After recommendations have been made by the departments, the new budget plan materials must be reviewed by the department's dean, the vice presidents of administration and finance, student affairs, and academic development; the budget officer and Eastern's president.

In order to allow the departments more time to complete the newly developed long-range budget plan materials, the date for when each department must turn in the materials has been moved from March 28 to April 7, George Miller, Eastern vice president for administration and finance, said Tuesday.

Eastern budget officer John Morrisey said the additional time is needed in order for the departments to do a good job when completing the materials.

Because of the 10-day date change, the reviewing of the completed materials by the vice presidents and the budget officer will be shorter, Morrisey said.

Workshops to familiarize the academic departments with the new plan began Feb. 28.

Both Morrisey and Miller said all university deans have been briefed on the new process along with some department chairmen and faculty.

Donald Lauda, dean of the School of Technology, said, however, he has not been briefed on the new plan because he could not attend the workshop Feb. 28.

"I know there is a new plan, but I am just sitting and waiting to be informed of it," Lauda said.

Jaenike said he will meet with members of his department this week to inform them of the new plan.

Hoffman said faculty in the accountancy and finance department know there is a new plan, but they have not been fully informed of it.

Open house set for candidates

A public open house for Coles County states attorney candidates will be held at 5 p.m. Wednesday at the Charleston Community Unit One School Administration Building, 410 W. Polk.

The open house, sponsored by the Charleston League of Women Voters, will not have any type of formal presentations, LWV spokesman Jo Ann Laible said. However, if time permits, she said the candidates may briefly summarize their positions.

The candidates scheduled to be there are Republicans Nancy Owen, Rick Hobler and James Dedman and Democrats John Elder and Lonnie Lutz.

Editorial

It's time to return to old school classes

Apparently, the newest school of thought concerning education is to bring back the old school of thought, which is good thinking.

The old school of thought is to teach basics: reading, writing, mathematics, and also to include courses such as foreign languages which help round out a person's education.

Eastern's Council on Academic Affairs recently approved two new general requirements for education which reflect this move back to the basics. The requirements are a junior-year English examination and foreign language electives for bachelor of arts candidates.

The support for the English examination is wide-spread in the academic community and somewhat surprisingly, this support includes members of Eastern's English department. The examinations could be construed as attempts to decide whether our English teachers indeed are teaching students correct English, and if test results are very negative, the teachers could be the first persons blamed.

But the growing functional illiteracy in our society should be traced back to the elementary and secondary schools which stressed creative thinking and writing without first laying a sound foundation of grammar, sentence structure and punctuation.

Poor usage of the English language is a handicap which hampers people for life.

Someone along the line of a person's education must try to gauge whether that person grasps the basics of our language. It is good that the CAA members seem to want to initiate that check.

Even though proper English instruction has suffered in the past couple of decades, instruction in languages other than our own has suffered even more.

Foreign language instruction in elementary and secondary schools was phased out when lack of education funding forced program cuts. Fewer foreign language students have caused foreign language departments to struggle for survival. College students have not generally been interested in taking foreign languages when they have had no prior exposure to the languages.

Ethnocentrism has no place in our society, and one way to help combat this negative and potentially damaging attitude is to teach students that English isn't the only language spoken in the world. A good way to do this is to teach major languages spoken in other countries.

We favor the slow assimilation of strong fundamental learning courses at all levels of education throughout the state of Illinois. The education outlays for the next fiscal year will take 28 percent of the state's budget. That is a great investment in the future, if the programs it helps fund will adequately educate the state's school children.

Midterm slumps and cheap grades go hand-in-hand

I hate to wake some of you out of your sleep, but it is that time of the semester to snap out of it and start worrying about grades.

It is midterm week, and if most of you are like me, you feel like you just started this semester's classes and you cannot really believe there are only a couple more tests left to bring that low grade up.

Since this is midterm week, I have been spending a great deal of my time in the library. (I have to keep up a college student image and be in the library at least twice, during midterm and finals week.)

During my hours at the library when it was too noisy to study or when I was day dreaming, I overheard a number of conversations between students about their grades.

I was appalled to hear some of the suggestions given by the sympathetic listeners of students flunking one course or another.

One girl told a guy, who, by the way, was so loud I could not study so I had to listen, if she didn't pass her midterm test, she might as well hang it up because the class was way too hard.

Of course the guy says, even if he passed the course by a half of a point, "Don't worry I'm sure you'll pass."

That is what I expected to hear from him, but the next thing he said threw me off guard. He said, "Why don't you just go in and talk to him, he'll pass you for sure, because he always passes good-looking girls that go in to talk to him."

I about died, but you know I was not that shocked, because after being here for three semesters I have heard there are hundreds of ways to pass a course without doing the required work.

For instance, a real good friend of mine told me about a girl, who is the same major as her, who actually goes out with some of her instructors for a "cup of coffee."

Who's to know what they really do! But, hey, if she says they just go and have a cup of coffee that is what they do, I guess.

Melinda
DeVries

Also my friend says the girl always receives A's in every class that she has a male instructor for.

Sounds fishy to me and that burns me up! I used to respect people who were smart and who got good grades, but I don't anymore because who knows if they deserved them or not?

Getting decent grades because you are "buddies" with an instructor is really a cheap way to get a grade.

Not doing any work until the last minute is another way to get a cheap grade.

You find that you just didn't feel like going to class, so you don't go. Then all of a sudden it hits you-you are going to flunk.

What is the next thing a student does? Right, they go to their instructor and beg for the time to get overdue projects done.

Of course the instructor says yes, so the student does the projects the week of finals and it never fails, they get a better grade than honest Joe who has worked very hard to get his in on time.

I would just love to hear that everyone gets the grades they deserve, but I guess those days are gone.

I thought once I got to college everyone would get the grades they deserve. But noooo!

So anyway, I just thought I would let you know that if you wanted to try for an honest grade now is the time to start working on it, during midterm week.

But if you don't, fine, try another way because no one will ever know how you got that impressive grade.

Letters to the editor

Ted's the one

Editor,

In looking at the record of Jimmy Carter, I see a president who has brought this nation perilously close to economic chaos. He admits that he can do nothing about it as if that were an argument that indeed there is nothing that anyone can do. I see a president who has openly conducted foreign policy on misinformation, second guessing, and dangerous bluffing.

I see a president who has let this country continue on a journey to nuclear war because he is unable to act on the problem of addiction in the United States to foreign oil. I see a president who is using the "bogy" of the draft to rally the country behind his misguided policies.

Basically, I don't see a seasoned, reasonable, wise, and forceful leader that we thought we elected four years ago. I see a shifting, uncertain, amateur, who would like to do so many good things, but just cannot.

To use a phrase borrowed from President Carter's last campaign, let's elect "leaders for a change." I do see these qualities in Edward Kennedy. He spent 17 years in the highest law making body in the land, the United States Senate, at the center of the American foreign policy, economic planning, and political bargaining.

Jimmy Carter spent a term as a state legislator and a governor before moving to the highest office in the land. He has not moved the country forward on the economic, political or diplomatic fronts because he does not have the experience or the ability to do so. Ted Kennedy does.

President Carter's campaign slogan last time was "Why not the best?" We have seen the results we've gotten. Paul Simon has said, "We can do better" by electing Ted Kennedy. Surely we can do better.

AB reviews budget proposals for 1980-1981

by Leesa Freeland

Budget proposals from sports and recreation, the University Board, general music, art board, players and the Health Service for 1980-81 were presented to the Apportionment Board Sunday and Monday.

On Sunday, sports and recreation spokesmen said they need an increase in payroll to provide additional supervision because of the increase in sport teams.

The sports and rec departments also requested AB funding for two graduate assistants.

The total fee appropriation in this area for 1979-80 was $34,914.36. The requested appropriation for 1980-81 is $47,656.20, an increase of $12,741.84.

University Board members presented their activities Sunday.

The 1980-81 Coffeehouse request is $6,775.00, an increase of $2,695.00 from last year.

The UB Concert Committee asked for $5,000 in student fees. Its initial budget requires $140,000 with an expected income of $136,000. The additional $5,000 is to help eliminate promoters and their unnecessary costs to the program.

The Crazy Daze in May Committee asked for $1,540.00, a $965 increase from 1979-80. The committee said the increase would provide the students with a full week of activities during May at little or no cost. Previously some of the activities during the crazy days required fees from participating students.

The UB budget for miscellaneous items increased from $300 to $647. Dues, magazines, ads, refreshments, duplicating and the Warbler picture are included in this budget. The AB suggested that the UB pay for year-book pictures from their own pockets.

On Monday, general music began the budget session by asking for an increase of $6,160 in musical instruments. The 1979-80 appropriation was $1,638.

The marching band festival under general music has become self-supporting and did not ask for any fees. The registration fee from the participating high school bands covers all expenses.

The personnel performance and accompaniment budget under general music asked for an additional $1,000 to schedule entertainers like Clark Terry, Al Hirt or Boots Randolph to perform and hold workshops.

The theater area of players are asking for a budget increase of $3,560 to pay the students who help with the costumes, scenery and ticket selling. The 1979-80 player appropriation was $500.

The art board asked for an additional $13,000 to engage guest artists who would be interesting to the whole community rather than solely art students. The total request is $14,200.00

The Health Service asked for $635 over last year's budget request. Only $475 is needed for salary increases and $150 needed for medical supplies.

The AB will review the Eastern News, Warbler and Vehicle budgets Wednesday.

Remaining budgets from WELH, Forensics and the Model United Nations will be heard Thursday.

After all the budgets from campus activities have been heard, the AB will begin making appropriations Saturday.

Self-service postal unit moved to vending area

by Patty O'Neill

A new self-service postal unit has been placed in the vending lounge of the University Union for student use.

Harold Hackett, self-service technician from the Charleston Post Office, said the postal unit has been moved from its former location near Booth Library to the Vending Lounge because it was subject to too much abuse from the weather as well as from students.

The new postal unit will offer stamps, stamp books, envelopes, post cards, 22 cent aerograms and minimum insurance up to $15, he said.

"The aerogram is a long piece of blue paper that is written on and folds into an envelope to be sent overseas. It should be popular with foreign students," Hackett said.

The aerograms will be sold in a package of five for $1.10.

The minimal insurance is 50 cents and covers packages up to $15. If a package is lost and it has been insured, then the sender will be reimbursed, Hackett said.

The old postal unit near Booth Library will be dismantled later, but students can still deposit mail in it, Hackett said.

The old unit has caused many problems since its installation in 1969, he said.

"The weather was a main problem. Humidity was hard on the machine. It caused the stamps to stick together, and the cold weather dried out the stamps and they lost their stickiness," Hackett said.

Another problem was students' abuse of the unit.

"Thirteen phones were stolen out of the unit that were hotlines directly to the post office giving information for the students' benefit. The telephone company refused to install any more," Hackett said.

Hackett stressed that anyone who has any problems with the new unit should call the number affixed to the machine.

"If anyone loses money in the machine, they will get their money back. The government doesn't keep it. All they have to do is call the phone number on the machine," Hackett said.

Two matinees will be presented at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 16 and 23.

Senate to view new budget

Student Senate members will discuss student government's fiscal year 1980-81 budget at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Tuscola-Arcola Room Senate Speaker Bill Mueller said.

Student Senator Bob Glover said the budget usually requests around $12,000 from the Apportionment Board to pay for expenses including travel, telephone and supplies.

Glover added that there may be a $2,000 increase in next year's student government budget.

Apportionments will also be made to the sports and recreation board and the Intercollegiate Athletic Board, Glover said.

Madison beats Lawrenceville in OT, 74-68

by Matt Davidson

Madison outscored Lawrenceville 12-6 in overtime to take a 74-68 super-sectional win Tuesday night in Lantz Gym and will advance to the quarterfinals of the IHSA state basketball tourney Friday in Champaign.

The Indians of Lawrenceville had a seemingly commanding five-point lead with just under a minute left in regulation.

Then junior guard Patrick Hatter put in a rebound basket with :48 left and then after a missed Lawrenceville free throw Hatter connected from long range to pull the Trojans within two.

After yet another missed free throw by the Indians, Hatter nailed a bucket from the top of the key to tie the score at 62-62 to send the game into overtime.

In the extra period Hatter tied the score at 64 after a Doug Novsek hoop from the corner. Madison then converted two steals into layups for a 68-64 advantage. From this point Lawrenceville could get no closer then 70-66 on a Kelly Newlin jumper.

"We got a couple of breaks when we needed it," Madison coach Larry Graham said, "but I felt like they outplayed us the whole ball game."

Lawrenceville coach Ron Felling was left not knowing just what went wrong.

"It is my opinion that we outplayed them and we gave it away," he said. "Why the pressure seemed to get to us and we missed our free throws, I don't know. Once it got into overtime I didn't like our chances."

Hatter led the Trojans with 23 points and six rebounds. Six-foot-one forward

Morris Hughes added 15 points before fouling out in the fourth quarter.

Lawrenceville placed four men in double figures, led by sophomore Doug Novsek's 19 points. Kenny Hughes scored 15, freshman center Marty Simmons and guard Kelly Newlin each deposited a dozen points.

Baseball Panthers gear up for new season

by Brian Nielsen

The weather may not be suitable for baseball yet, but Eastern's Panthers' 1980 season is about to begin.

Coach Tom McDevitt's club has been working out at Lantz Fieldhouse in preparation for its opener March 22 at Evansville.

The doubleheader at Evansville begins a two-week, 20-game road trip for the Panthers and includes a 15-day stay in Florida.

That trip will also include contests against at least four NCAA Division I teams and McDevitt hopes such competition will help his Panthers get ready for the rest of the season and their drive for a return to post-season play.

The third-year Eastern coach is also quick to point out the sacrifices his players will be making in order to take the longer than usual trip.

"We'll be making this trip for $3,600—that's $3,600, not $36,000," McDevitt said. "The way we're doing that is the players are buying their own meals for the whole two weeks."

"Because the players are paying for their meals, this 15-day trip to Florida will be as cheap or cheaper than last year's nine-day trip to Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky," the coach said. "When I asked all the players last spring if they would agree to pay for meals and be gone for two weeks, every one of them agreed."

"They're also going to have to make up all the work for the classes they miss," he added.

Still, McDevitt feels those sacrifices could be worthwhile if the Panthers will be able to end up with an NCAA Division II post-season tournament berth that barely got away a year ago.

Last year's team finished with a 20-18 record and lost a 6-3 playoff game to Indiana State-Evansville for the final spot in the Great Lakes Regional.

This year under the NCAA's new alignment, Eastern will be competing with Division II schools from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota for a spot in the Midwest playoffs.

"I don't know anything about the teams in some of those states, but it can't be any easier to make the playoffs since they've gone from eight regions to six this year," McDevitt said.

He feels his squad is equal to the challenge, however, if it can stay away from serious injuries.

"We're looking to have a good year," McDevitt said. "Our strength is our pitching unless somebody gets hurt. But a couple of injuries to one of our big three could kill us."

The "big three" on Eastern's pitching staff is the main reason for McDevitt's pre-season optimism, but also his biggest worry if injuries strike.

That nucleus consists of juniors Elliot Skorupa, Ken Westray and Randy "Max" Weibel.

Skorupa and Westray are both two-year lettermen. Last year the right-handed Skorupa led the team with a 5-0 record and a 2.78 earned run average and was named to the NCAA District IV third team.

The southpaw Westray was 2-2 with a 5.04 ERA.

Weibel is a transfer from Triton Junior College, where he was the state's winningest junior college pitcher with a 12-1 record. He went undefeated until the National Junior College World Series.

Four other lettermen—Myron Richardson, Lenny Lundberg, Terry Brown and Steve Hoffman, plus some newcomers are battling for the fourth spot on the starting rotation and the top relief job, which Lundberg handled last season.

"The other spot is up for grabs," McDevitt said. "It will probably depend a lot on the Southern trip, because just about everybody's going to pitch during those games."

The pitchers' supporting cast has plenty of experience and includes Tim Pyznarski, an All-District IV second team selection last spring.

Last year as a freshman, Pyznarski led the Panthers with a .302 batting average and six home runs.

He played third base last year and is also at third in McDevitt's tentative starting lineup, but the coach said he (See BASEBALL, page 10)

Eddy begins pursuit of new Panther cagers

by Andy Savoie

Eastern's basketball season may have just ended, but head coach Don Eddy and his staff are already in the process of recruiting players for next year's team.

Returning Monday from a recruiting trip which took him to Wisconsin, Chicago and Danville, Eddy said he is primarily in pursuit of 23 junior college and high school players and would be "tickled to death to get any of them."

"Forward is our primary target" in the search for players this year, Eddy said, "but we're recruiting across the board."

Pointing out that he had eight juniors on his squad this year, Eddy said he wants to bring in several freshmen next year so they will have a year's experience before assuming an integral role on the 1981-82 squad.

"This year is really important for us," Eddy said. "You don't want a bunch of freshmen out of high school playing for us the year after next."

Another reason the Panthers are recruiting more extensively is because they have three more scholarships to award than they did a year ago.

"Last year, we had only two scholarships to give and team needs weren't that great," Eddy said. This year Eastern has five, since there were five seniors on the team this season.

A school's representative can visit with a recruit and his family three times and the recruit can visit a school's campus once at the school's expense, Eddy said.

Eddy said half of his primary recruits visited Eastern last fall and that each of those has been visited at his home twice by either Eddy or one of his assistant coaches.

Since Eastern is a Division II school, Eddy said "most of the guys we recruit it turns out they are fringe recruits for the big schools."

Such players usually decide to come to Eastern as a second choice because they are not offered a scholarship to a bigger school, Eddy said.

Consequently, Eddy said Eastern will recruit many players and hope to sign a small number of them.

"It's like selling anything else. It's a numbers game to a certain extent," Eddy said. "We've got to talk to a lot of players and a lot of mamas and daddys knowing we're only going to get a small percentage of them."

However, Eddy said there are two factors which help Eastern—recruiting the decreased number of scholarships Division I teams are allowed to award and Eastern's prospective entrance into Division I.

"You could strike half those (recruits) on that list if they didn't think Eastern was going Division I," Eddy said.

As for the NCAA rule change, which gradually forced Division I teams to reduce the number of scholarships awarded from 25 to 15, Eddy said it has caused a "greater distribution of talent than there used to be."

"The big teams can't vacuum up all the good players anymore," Eddy said.

Hence, this actuality has allowed Eastern to pursue a higher quality athlete and has increased its chances of attracting an exceptional player, Eddy said. But the Panther head coach also said that securing a blue chip player is still unlikely.

"Usually, the great players at the lower levels are there because of academic problems," Eddy said.

However, Eddy said Eastern is "recruiting two players this year that are being heavily recruited by several major schools."

The pair are 6-foot-8 forward Ben Tower of Saranac High School in Michigan and 6-foot-4 guard Ben Franklin of Oneida Institute in Kentucky.

But Eddy is not optimistic that either will attend Eastern.

"I think you've got to be realistic. When you're going against the big boys you've got to realize you're working with a 22 and they're working with M-14 s and missiles."
